

Why it is Valuable to Learn the Polish Language.

During this time of change and high competition, a person who grasps the opportunity to learn is better prepared for higher achievement in life. Facing us and our children are greater challenges that will require difficult decisions and higher expectations in school and work.

It is not enough to speak in Polish at home. It is more valuable and important to also read and write in Polish to become literate in this language. Knowing Polish history and culture will enhance the learning and understanding of both Polish and American cultures.

Learning a language can sharpen memory skills, may enhance creativity, and may contribute to higher achievement in school. Knowing the Polish language may open opportunities for more interesting and rewarding professions, including employment with American companies based in Poland, or Polish companies based in the United States.

Encouraging your children to learn the Polish language will be an investment in their future.

Written by Ala Barnas

Translated by John Kowal